(December 2013)

BRITISH COLUMBIA

A Guide to Aboriginal Organizations and Services in British Columbia is a provincial listing of First Nation, Métis and Aboriginal organizations, communities and community services.

The Guide is dependent upon voluntary inclusion and is not a comprehensive listing of all Aboriginal organizations in B.C., nor is it able to offer links to all the services that an organization may offer or that may be of interest to Aboriginal people.

Publication of the Guide is coordinated by the Intergovernmental and Community Relations Branch of the Ministry of Aboriginal Relations and Reconciliation (MARR), to support streamlined access to information about Aboriginal programs and services and to support relationship-building with Aboriginal people and their communities.

Information in the Guide is based upon data available at the time of publication. The Guide data is also in an Excel format and can be found by searching the DataBC catalogue at:

<http://www.data.gov.bc.ca>.

NOTE: While every reasonable effort is made to ensure the accuracy and validity of the information, we have been experiencing some technical challenges while updating the current database. Please contact us if you notice an error in your organization's listing. We would like to thank you in advance for your patience and understanding as we work towards resolving these challenges.

If there have been any changes to your organization's contact information please send the details to:

SEARCHING THE GUIDE: SOME TIPS FOR READERS

You have three ways to search over 1,100 entries in the Guide.

1. By Name

If you know the name of an organization, but not the location or what kind of service it offers, you can look for the organization's name in the Alpha Index to find the right page.

2. By City or Town

If you know the city or town, but you are not sure about the name of the organization, turn to the City Index. Scan down the entries, listed in alphabetical order, until you find the city or town nearest you. Organizations under each city/town heading are also listed alphabetically.

3. By Category

If you want to find a certain category of organization, you can look under the Services and Agencies section of the Table of Contents (see next page over). Locate the category of service that matches your needs.

Multiple Listings

You may find listings for the same organization repeated in several places within the Guide depending upon the types of services they offer.

Users' Survey

On the last page of the Guide, you will find a Change/Add form and a Reader's Survey. We want to provide a way for you to give us your thoughts about how you and your organization use the Guide and how we could improve it in future years. Please take a few minutes to jot down a few comments and fax them back to (250) 356-9467 or email it ABRInfo@gov.bc.ca. Your comments are always welcome.

— Thank you.

The Pronunciation Guide contains aids to pronunciation of the names of First Nations communities and organizations listed in the 2013/2014 Guide to Aboriginal Organizations and Services in British Columbia. It was created with input from First Nations and other Aboriginal organizations, as well as from the First Peoples' Cultural Council.

British Columbia has a vast wealth of First Nations languages and cultures. B.C. is home to 60% of First Nations languages in Canada with 34 languages and 61 dialects. All of these languages contain a rich inventory of sounds, many of which are not found in English.

When preparing this guide, we asked representatives from Aboriginal organizations to help us understand how to pronounce the traditional name of their community. The pronunciation equivalents we have developed here are meant as an introductory guide for the reader and are not authoritative. Any errors in the spellings are ours.

It is important to note that many sounds in First Nations' languages do not occur in English and so cannot be expressed using the English writing system. Moreover, there are often multiple variations of a pronunciation based on dialectal and other differences. The pronunciations represented below come as close as possible to the correct pronunciation, while being restrained to the English alphabet. A few of the letter combinations below are used to represent specific sounds not found in English. These are:

- “wh” represents a breathy ‘wh’ sound that is pronounced with friction in the throat.
- “thl” represents a breathy ‘l’ sound with friction in the mouth, similar to the l in ‘athlete’
- “ts” at the beginning of a word sounds like the ‘ts’ in ‘cats’

First Nation communities and organizations continue to adopt Indigenous names distinct from anglicized versions or non-Aboriginal names. Names familiar to the reader are cross-referenced with traditional names in brackets.

The final authority on a pronunciation rests with the community. The reader is advised to always gain a first-hand understanding of how a particular name is pronounced by speaking directly with, and being guided by, representatives from each community.

For more information about First Nations languages in British Columbia, please visit the the First Peoples' Cultural Council's website (www.fpcc.ca), as well as the First Peoples' Language Map of B.C. on the outside cover of this guide.

Your comments and suggestions for improvement are welcome.
